His latest creation merges the entree and snack into one with Hot-N-Ready Slices-N-Stix. Four slices of pepperoni, eight Italian cheese steaks and a side of crazy sauce. Grabbing my Hot-N-Ready Pizza from Little Caesars' very cool and innovative Pizza portal by scanning the code on my phone, I was surprised to see it personalized just for me. What I thought said: SES on the outside, my initials, was actually an S for slices-N-Stix. The seemingly nice gesture from Caesar was just some kind of insider staff member scribbled to make sure the pizza didn't go into the wrong portal slot. I would have photographed the sweet car, but it was the most crowded Little Caesar I've ever been to, packed with customers and a line ten deep out the door. Friday night pizza night lives! Nine out of ten times when I order a personalized pie, I get half and half because who doesn't like to mix their bites? This desire to have slices of different identities made this latest creation alluring. I should have had it right now. The only disappointment was finding I didn't get any crazy sauce in my box. I had to check but the location was such a crazy house that I didn't dare open my sparkling pizza in front of 20 still happy people around me. Luckily, my house was stocked with pasta sauce, so the evening went on. Pepperoni pizza is half exactly what you expect. I've found quality LC in the last couple of years, be much better than what I remember from the early 2000s. The sauce is spicy and fragrant, the cheese is blue and abundant, and the pepperoni is shiny and salty. With a foundation cortex that has enough weight to feel the feel without being too breadly. This was my first time being an Italian Stix cheese and I really enjoyed them. Despite being on the same crust, the lack of sauce changes the taste of the dough in a way that really emphasizes the greasy cheese. I loved the alternative cut style from the usual half of the pizza which left me with a couple of pieces that had no crust, just cheesy, bread bliss. When dunked in Marinara, I get that classic cheese flavor to salon bread with just the right acidity amount. However, it still tastes different from the usual slices of pizza with altered topping ratios. Slices-N-Stix is a very simple concept that is executed perfectly. As usual with Little Caesars, it's hard to quibble with quality with its generous prices, and this limited offer delivers what it promises. The food doesn't have to be crazy to be crazy good, and despite the missing crazy sauce, I can't wait to have this one again before it inevitably disappears.
